The Long Shadow

Generously hosted by:

B'nai Jehoshua Beth Elohim Congregation
1201 Lake Cook Road, Deerfield, IL 60015

As "daughters of the South," filmmakers Frances Causey and Sally Holst were raised with a romanticized vision of America's past, but they were haunted by the truth of slavery's legacy in their own history. Through their film, they investigate the roots of our current racial conflicts.

Immediately following the screening, Director Frances Causey will take questions via Skype and Moderator, Sharon Hatchett, will lead a "Let's Be Clear" panel discussion (with audience participation), that includes reactions to the film, and how we can engage our community in conversations about the divisive and lasting effects of slavery, racism, and white privilege in order to build greater understanding, acceptance, and positive change.
